Feria is the term in the church's calendar for a day when there is no feast, fast, or other significant observance to be kept. On ferial days it is customary to use the collect from the preceding Sunday as the collect of the day.

(tr.) indicates that an observance has been transferred from its proper date, usually because of a conflict with a Sunday or another observance.

Eve of... Ancient Christian custom holds that important days, including Sundays, begin their observance on the evening of the day before their calendar date. This tradition is where observances like Halloween and Christmas Eve are rooted.
